Keynote Speakers

Joyce Marie Sheldon

Joyce Marie Sheldon, known affectionately as “Joy”, is quick to tell you that she is not a minister nor a psychologist, but simply a woman of faith – a woman who was burned at the fires, and who walked out of those fires, as her father would say, smelling like a rose!

Joy is the author of From Fear to Faith, A Caregiver’s Journey. Her personal experiences with The Power of Acceptance have led her to share her insight and to embrace her mission of inspiring and nurturing the spiritual well-being of others, especially those in the role of caregiver. Joy shares her first-hand knowledge of the mind, body, and spirit connection through moving and inspirational keynote speeches, workshops and special events. Her most popular presentation is based on the “5 Cities of Transition” as she refers to them - “cities” we visit during the journey from fear to faith. Whatever the loss - relationship, job, financial security - the five cities remain the same. In late 2007, she released her second book, Seekers and Dreamers ... a collection, which contains poetry, prayers and meditations, along with a CD of her favorite selections from the book. That was followed by Living Sanctuariously, the 26 Stepping Stones to Inner Peace. It is a hand-crafted book, created totally by Joy with individual themes and embellishments. It represents the simple truths the author embraces and from which her various teachings are taken,” Two other books were published in 2010 - Mia and Mr. Red Feather and Little Kind Heart. Mia and Mr. Red Feather is a tender story of love, trust and friendship. Little Kind Heart is for those grieving the loss of a child. Joy is a resident of Mooresville, NC and the mother of seven children. Her venture into the field of art reveals visions of ethereal serenity; thus, the name of her collection “Visions by Joy.” A review of her work stated: “The insight of the artist’s heart and the essence of her being are reflected in each piece.”

Daniel Seufert

Daniel Seufert draws from his experiences and knowledge gained over 34 years as a behavioral interventionist. Working with clients from a variety of backgrounds, settings, and situations over the years, he has demonstrated particular knowledge, expertise, and interest in working with clients and family members of clients experiencing chronic illness and end-of-life issues. A strong proponent of the Family Dynamics Approach to intervention, he believes that successfully using this approach in chronic and end-of-life situations depends on:

1. Helping each family member understand the role(s) they adopt and play – and the role(s) other family members adopt and play - in order to cope with chronic and end-of-life issues.
2. Offering healthier ways of coping and communicating within the family. Continued

3. Helping each family member identify their individual gifts and coordinating these gifts to the benefit of the family and the chronic or end-of-life client.

In his presentations, Daniel is a strong believer in providing practical application of the knowledge presented. Daniel's presentations are lively, entertaining, applicable, and informative.

Keynote Joyce Marie Sheldon –National author, inspirational speaker and caregiver advocate

Running on Empty

Are you running on empty? This morning of inspiration will:
REFRESH your goals and values, personally and professionally
REVITALIZE your physical and emotional energy
RENEW your commitment to health and home

On a daily basis, those professionals that work directly with patients and their families are called upon to give; give of their time, give of their energy and even give beyond their own limitations. Joyce Marie Sheldon is a woman who has been there. She captivates her audience by sharing stories and by addressing the human side of all of us as we deal with issues that arise out of crisis. "Running on Empty" will motivate and inspire participants while providing tools for growth.

Objectives:

Upon completion of this activity the participant should be able to:

- Identify tools to assist in dealing with the challenges of daily life, both personal and professional.
- Identify and assess the stumbling blocks encountered during personal growth.
- Identify solutions to simplify the personal and professional growth process.

9:45-10:45a.m:

Bridges to Understanding: A Caregiver's Conference Part 1: Because you loved me

This presentation will involve a journey thru the 5 cities of transition and the question "Where are you now?"; a tribute to those who share the journey; from family and friends to the professional caregiver. This presentation includes the moving meditation "Imagine the Darkness Escaping."

11:00-12:00noon:

Bridges to Understanding: A caregiver's conference Part 2: Bridge over troubled waters. This presentation will continue to broaden your horizons of caregiving and emotional care for oneself. Joyce will focus on the concept of running on empty, conscious gratitude, and living sanctuariously. The presentation will include reading from Little Kind Heart which emphasizes the power and beauty of living in the now and the gift of legacy.

12:15-1:45pm:

Box lunches provided by Village at Northrise

2:00-3:00p.m.:

Bridges to Understanding: A Caregiver's Conference Part 3: Love can Build a Bridge. This presentation will continue and close the caregiver series. Joyce will share the 7 steps to compatible relationships, the power of thoughts and words, identifying your support system, and moving toward forgiveness. The presentation will include the reading of "You Are My Caregiver Friend" from the book, From Fear to Faith, A Caregiver's Journey.

3:15-4:15p.m.:

Family Dynamics: "We're Not Crazy, We Just Look Like We Are." This presentation will address the unhealthy roles and related behavioral characteristics that may be exhibited by family members of the patient. It will assist attendees to become aware of and understand these roles and characteristics; assist family members develop healthier roles and behaviors when dealing with the illness of a loved one; and explore factors that may contribute to the development of health and unhealthy behaviors.

Would you like to become a Mesilla Valley Hospice Volunteer?

Mesilla Valley Hospice Volunteers have been a special part of hospice services for many years. We could not accomplish our mission without them. Our volunteers cheer and support patients and their families, helping them live life fully throughout the illness.

Some volunteers find that their talents are better directed to office support. Each day hospice offices are filled with volunteer friends who give their time helping organize, file, mail and perform other routine tasks. Other volunteers have raised hundreds of thousands of dollars through special event fund raising.

If you would like more information on our volunteer programs please contact our volunteer program office at 575-525-5737 or visit us online at www.mvhospice.org.

The Center for Grief Services at Mesilla Valley Hospice provides a place of comfort to process and experience grief and loss.

We provide the following free services to our community:

- Professional training on grief and loss issues
- Individual grief counseling for adults, children and families
- Outreach and grief support to groups and organizations

Mesilla Valley Hospice

Mesilla Valley Hospice continues to provide community education to the entire Doña Ana County community. It is our passion as a nonprofit to be a community leader in all things Hospice and to continue educating and bridging the gap of Hospice knowledge. The Mesilla Valley Hospice Marketing and Education Department is providing a variety of classes taught by highly qualified Hospice staff members. These classes can be held in our Rotary Community Conference Room or at other business locations. Resources such as handouts, discussion questions and a certificate of completion will be provided.

Topics include:

(1) Cultural Considerations at the End of Life: This course explains how different cultures affect the needs and reactions of patients and their families. It encourages the viewer to take an inventory of their own beliefs so they are able to step outside those and better assist their clients.

(2) Choosing Hope at the End of Life: At the end of life, many patients express hope for the impossible. They hope to escape death. Hospice caregivers also struggle with the notion of hope in the face of their own certain death and seek clarity for their own lives and for their patients. Using various disciplines, reflection, and story, this presentation will explore what hope is, how it functions, the natural context in which it is born and nourished, its allies and its enemies. Hospice caregivers can learn to educate and empower their patients to choose hope.

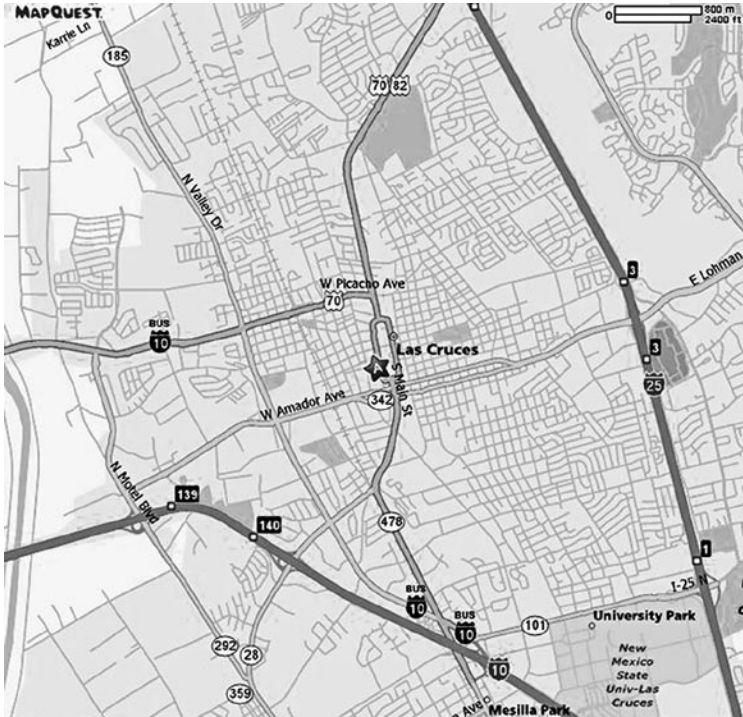

(3) Depression in the Dying: This program is designed to assist the learner in understanding the differences between sadness and depression. The speaker discusses the demographics of depression among distinct populations providing hospice staff and volunteers identifiable risk factors for depression in patients at the end of life. Symptoms and treatments for depression are also examined.

(4) Hospice 101: An Introduction to Hospice Services: Hospice 101 is an introduction to hospice care designed for those who are new to the concept of hospice care. The program reviews the history of hospice, the Medicare hospice benefit, the focus of hospice care, and services generally provided by hospice programs. It also reviews the differences between hospice and palliative care.

(5) Explaining Hospice to Patients and Families: In our initial approach to the patients and families who are considering hospice, it is critical that we model our work and reflect compassion, knowledge, awareness and sensitivity. In this presentation, we will explore ways to initiate the discussion of hospice, manage fears and barriers, enhance communication and paint a picture of hospice as a source of help and support.

(6) Religious Beliefs and Traditions at the End of Life: This course provides a general overview of the death rituals for the most common religions in the U.S, explaining basic beliefs and traditions, how each group handles the body after death, and information on the preparation and viewing of the body.
